THE Art Patrons of America Inc. is an organization working for the co-operative interests of Artists and Patrons.

It was founded in 1921, as " Junior Art Patrons of America Inc ". Owing to the fact that many adult collectors and connoisseurs are members of our organization the misapprehension caused by the word " Junior " made it seem advisable to change the name. The idea of interesting the younger generation in significant works of Art, which may be bought at reasonable prices, is still however, an important factor.

At the new galleries 705 Fifth Ave. We shall continue our policy of holding exhibitions of painting, sculpture, drawings and prints by distinguished Artists.

The Art Patrons of America acknowledge with deep gratitude the interest and able services of Mrs Muriel Boardman and Major Alaric Simson, and the great generosity of Mrs Wm Payne Thompson who has made this exhibition possible.

We also thank for their assistance Mr. Adolph Lewisohn, Mrs Alfred Rossin, Mrs Benjamin Stern and Mrs John W. Garrett.

F O R E W O R D

RECENT EVENTS seem to have stimulated the emotional life of the American people to such a degree that they find it hard to fall back into the complacency of their former living. The old security in ease and comfort seems suddenly insufficient, and there is a general searching for more enduring values, and a scrutiny of the nation's resources, spiritual as well as material. We have been in the habit of looking overseas for artistic guidance, but now, unsuspected among us, our artists have been at work setting down a record of our deeper virtues.

The inauguration of the Art Patrons of America comes quite opportunely with this awakened recognition of the artist as the one among us, who can best give expression to those ardors and aspiration which have animated our national life from its beginnings. This Exhibition of American Art is in the way of a mirror making reflection of our truest and most abiding qualities. Here are the visions of our native painters and sculptors translated, and made tangible and visible to us; all together they form a picture of us by which we will be judged by future generations.

It is impossible to view this exhibition without just pride. I believe that many people who visit these halls will be amazed at the number of individual works which stand forth as masterworks. The cumulative greatness of American art is here revealed, not as a grand national style, but as the emergence of a series of brilliant individuals. The exigencies of the pioneer life, and the lack of a cultural tradition, made early contact with European influences inevitable. In fact, it was the contact of those pioneer artists with European culture which mitigated the deep provincialism of our early national life. Even today we suffer more from lack rather than surfeit of cultural rapport with the older countries; and we still have much to learn from our own artists who bring us the breadth of their cosmopolitanism. Modern tendencies in art are less and less national in the narrow sense, and the separate cults and schools have their devotees in various countries quite regardless of geographical boundaries.

Yet the pictures hung in this exhibition are imbued with qualities that are essentially American. You get a sense of some tremendous vitality pervading these canvasses, of an emotional energy that has scarcely been tapped. You feel that these men have deep sources to draw from, and that especially the young moderns are very near to their sources. The new spirit, the new knowledge, the new liberation in the arts, have put a power into the hands of our artists to express the truth and beauty of America as it has never been told before.

If you are one who harbors a faith in the high spirit of America, you will acknowledge a loyalty and gratitude toward these men and women who are saying such fine things for their country. It will come to you poignantly that these are ours, and that you want to give them your encouragement and support.
